

Speed Orientation

Ask a few successful credential professionals to come to your orientation for the SAC Credential. Break the current class into groups and have each group sit with an alumni. Set the timer for 5 minutes. Each alumni has been instructed to talk about their own experience with the credential including, why they took it, the benefit of taking the credential, the importance of time management and some of their own “trials and tribulations” throughout the process. The orientation would be complete once all groups had the opportunity to speak with each professional. I would also recommend at the end, a general “Q & A” session.
