

Supervision Activity

All staff members should stand in a circle and three people are given balloons. Staff members are instructed to supervise the balloons, making sure none of them hit the ground. If the balloons hit the ground they must stay there. One by one staff members are asked to do something else.

Ex: One staff member is told to go to the corner of the room and text message their friend. One staff member is asked to sit down and color a picture. Two staff members are asked to turn around and carry on a conversation about what they did last night. Etc.

As all of the staff members become preoccupied with different things, the balloons will fall to the ground.

Discussion – When were we able to keep the most balloons in the air? Why? When were we unable to “supervise” the balloons? Why?
